

Shelby Seeley is a passionate leader, coach, and entrepreneur committed to empowering women to thrive in both life and business. With over 2 decades in ministry and over a decade in real estate, alongside her high school sweetheart married for 26 years, they coach couples and individuals in marriage and business success. Shelby and her husband host the "Redesign Your Marriage" podcast, focusing on helping couples design the marriage of their dreams.

Driven by a desire to leave a lasting legacy, she owns several companies and inspires women to discover their purpose and potential. Through coaching, speaking engagements, and her podcast, Shelby ignites a passion for abundance and fulfillment, encouraging others to redesign their lives for enduring impact and significance.

In addition to her professional pursuits, Shelby is a proud mother of two adult children. Her son recently graduated with his BA in psychology, while her daughter just completed a transformative three-month mission trip to Africa.

Shelby enjoys traveling, especially abroad, and finds solace in the beauty of the ocean. She is passionate about her health and fostering deep friendships. Believing firmly in the empowerment of women, Shelby advocates for women to rise up, use their voices, and make a significant impact for the kingdom of God in this season and hour, both for today and for generations to come. Her unwavering commitment to empowering women reflects her belief that every woman has the potential for greatness and lasting influence.
